

MANAGEMENT INFORMATION SYSTEM for CIA

STAT

15 Jan 1965, [] meeting with [] the DD/S coordinator for EDP and representative for MIS design.

OCS involvement assumed because the system would be computer-driven and OCS was charged with providing computer services centrally for CIA, including systems design.

OCS pointed out that decentralized systems design was contrary to the original charter of OCS and its predecessor ADPS, and contrary to the reaffirmation of this principle in 1963, when the CHIVE system design function was confirmed as an OCS responsibility; and contrary to the recent decision by DD/S&T at the conclusion of the TRB&S survey of OCS.

OCS view that MIS planning should be joint effort, using all available talent and resources of the Agency.
